

"We installed a Rain Bird IC System™ in 2021. Since then, turf conditions have gotten exponentially better. The user-friendly central control allows me to easily program irrigation and troubleshoot any potential communication issues with each sprinkler head first thing in the morning before I get out in the field. It is with great comfort now that I can check the status of my entire system within 1 minute of running a communication test. The state of NY did a massive drainage project in 2022. As a result, we had to move many of the heads and pipes and re-install them. The ability to run a communication test to every head in the field enabled me to know everything was repaired and installed properly following the drainage renovation."
